

WHAT IS DOMESTIC VIOLENCE?

Domestic Violence includes a variety of abusive behaviors or threats of abuse. It can be a combination of physical, sexual and/or verbal abuse. You have committed domestic violence when you physically harm, intimidate or cause fear in the person you cohabit with. The definition of cohabitation is a person 16 years or older, is or was a spouse, is or was living as a spouse, is related by blood or marriage, has one or more children in common or has resided in the same residence as the other party.

DIFFERENT TYPES OF ABUSE

Physical abuse:

Hitting, punching, shoving, kicking, biting, choking, slapping, shaking, pinching, using weapons and objects that can harm, restraining or threatening to cause harm to partner.

Sexual abuse:

Acting violently or physically causing pain while having sex, forcing unwanted sex, forcing sex after a violent action, raping or using objects to cause harm during sex.

Psychological abuse:

Name calling, threatening, criticizing, ridiculing, placing blame, intimidating, manipulating, accusing partner of an affair or controlling partner's actions or friendships.

CYCLE OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

Phase 1: Tension-building

You may feel irritable, easily upset, small things seem to get to you. Other may feel like they are walking on "egg shells" when they are around you.

Phase 2: Violence

The violence explodes. This may include verbal abuse, sexual abuse and/or physical abuse.

Phase 3: A Period of Remorse may follow

After the violence you may be sorry for what happened. You may ask for forgiveness and promise to change. Remember, that domestic violence will not go away by itself, there are program out there that can help.

PROTECTIVE ORDERS/NO CONTACT ORDERS

No-Contact orders: If you have just been released from jail you most likely have signed an agreement called a No-Contact order. When you sign this you are agreeing not to have any contact with the other party. You cannot call, threaten or harass the other party. You cannot enter the premises of the other party's residence or where they may be temporarily staying. This agreement is in effect until the close of the next court day.

Ex-parte orders: This is a temporary order of protection, restraining you from having any contact with the Petitioner. You cannot call, threaten, write or enter the residence of the Petitioner. You cannot contact them at their place of employment/school or church. There will be a court date written on the ex-parte order, letting you know the date and time of your court appearance. This order is effective until a hearing is held where both sides of the story will be heard.

Protective orders: This is a court order of protection restraining you from having any contact with the Petitioner. You cannot call, threaten, write to or enter the residence of the Petitioner. You cannot go to his/her place of employment/school or church. This order may provide the Petitioner with temporary custody of minor children, access to property and temporary relief of other civil matters.

- It is a class "A" misdemeanor if you violate any of the orders listed above. Remember this order is against the Respondent, it is the Respondents responsibility to stay away from the Petitioner.
